GERMANS DENY NEW LAND GRAB

Nazis Speak For Tokyo, Says No Pacific Areas Being Sought

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—On behalf of its new military ally, Nazi Germany today denied any Japanese territorial ambitions in the Pacific Ocean.

At the same time, the Reich announced that the new tripartite Italo-German-Japanese alliance would not alter Germany's policy of respecting the Monroe Doctrine and reiterated its contention there will be no interference in Latin America.

(Editor's Note: An official Berlin spokesman yesterday stated that Germany and Italy soon would begin to deal with Spain as the "mother country" of Latin-American nations.)

"The new agreement," an official spokesman declared, "is intended as a barrier to extension of the war."

"It is not provocative, and it does not alter Germany's fundamental policy of respecting the Monroe Doctrine."

"It is directed chiefly against dark forces and certain cliques in England, France and all parts of the world which are deliberately seeking extension of the war."

"So far as America is concerned, we never took any stand against the Monroe Doctrine, but continue to say 'America for the Americans.' We never intended to and we never will mix in the political affairs of the Americas. We have never said that our defensive frontier lies or will be extended to the Amazon."

AN appeal by the British government to its citizens for old aluminum pots and pans brought heaps of the kitchen utensils to plants where they are being re-smelted and used for a more glamorous and patriotic purpose. Aluminum is one of the basic materials used in the manufacture of the Spitfire fighting planes. Workmen, left, clean and remove non-aluminum parts from the pots and pans. After re-smelting, the aluminum ingots are piled, right, before the conversion into airplane parts.

Willkie Travels East To Make Report On Trip

Aboard Willkie Train Enroute New York, Sept. 28.—Following one of his strongest speeches, in which he charged the New Deal and the President with preserving the form and abandoning the substance of democracy, and with building power for re-election on congressional "blank checks," Wendell Willkie rolled East today to report on the status of his campaign.

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR DUE AT 3 O'CLOCK

Pickaway County Democrats Saturday noon were preparing to greet Martin L. Davey, Democratic candidate for governor, when he arrives in Circleville at 3 p. m. He was scheduled to speak from the Court House steps immediately on arrival.

Democratic Chairman Carl Leist said Saturday that he had still received no report concerning the personnel of the Davey party, but said it would be either John McSweeney, candidate for United States senator, Dennis Dunlavy, candidate for Supreme Court Judge, or William Kennedy, unsuccessful candidate for governor in the primary election.

County Democratic candidates may be introduced at the rally if time permits, while music will be furnished by the Adelphi band.

Either Saturday afternoon immediately after the Davey Party leaves for Chillicothe, or Saturday evening a series of sound films, showing phases of the government's conservation and agricultural program, may be seen at Democratic Headquarters on South Court Street. Mrs. Elizabeth Davison, West Franklin Street, and Miss Martha Miller, North Court Street, will be in charge of the Democratic office.

Nazis Send Big Flight Over Kent Coast Flying High Above Clouds

INVASION BASES BLASTED

Widely-Separated Districts Of Isles In Ruins After Heavy Offensive

LONDON, Sept. 28.—German raiders attempted a new daylight attack on London today and set warning sirens screaming in the British capital for the 134th time since the war began.

Reports from a southeastern town said a strong force of German machines crossed the Kent coast and headed for London, flying so high they were invisible although the air throbbed with the roar of their motors.

While the alarm was in progress, far distant bomb explosions were audible and British fighting planes engaged German raiders attempting to penetrate London's eastern and southeastern outskirts.

Several sharp bursts of machine gun fire and the drone of aircraft engines could be heard from central London. There was fairly heavy anti-aircraft fire east of the city.

The raiders flew over the coast above shielding patches of cloud but immediately were met by a fierce barrage of ground fire. Most of them continued inland, however.

Invasion Ports Hit

While Nazi raiders again pounded London and other areas of the British Isles last night and early this morning, British bombers dropped tons of missiles on German-held invasion ports and targets in the Reich itself.

As previous nights, London again was the main objective of the night-flying Nazi bombers, but many bombs were dropped on widely separated areas of the (Continued on Page Eight)

SOUTHERN BASE NAMED NEW AIR CORPS STATION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The War Department today announced that the municipal airport of Oklahoma City has been selected as a site for a new air corps station.

Two hundred officers and 2,200 enlisted men comprising the 48th bombardment group, the 37th air base group and service detachment will be stationed at the field as facilities become available, the department said.

Record Crowd Present As Tigers Surprise Gales

A record football crowd, estimated by gate officials to be over 2,000, lined both sides of the football field and overflowed around the west end, Friday night, as it watched a spirited Circleville eleven hold a "powerful" Lancaster team to a 13 point margin, the game ending 13 to 0 in favor of Lancaster.

Circleville fans, who had expected the Lancaster team, outweighing the Tigers 18 pounds to the man, looked twice at the score board to make sure there was no mistake before they hurried home to get a cup of coffee, warm their feet and go to bed with a unanimous feeling that the score could have been a lot worse. The scoreboard by mistake showed 14 points.

Lancaster scores came at each end of the game, one early in the first period and the other a few minutes before the final gun, both resulting from passing attacks. Circleville's major threat came in the first quarter when Right Half-back Carl Eby intercepted a Lancaster pass in Tiger territory and ran the ball back to the Lancaster 14 yard line, where they failed to gain yardage and lost the ball on downs.

During the half, the crowd that framed the field watched the Circleville High School band and the Lancaster 70-piece band or milled around the lunch stand.

Police Chief William McCrady and his patrolmen kept traffic moving on South Court and adjoining streets as the crowd poured from the field after the game.

Commission To Put Men In U. S. Jobs

Thousands Who Register Under Draft Act To Be Assigned

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Thousands of men who register under the new draft law on October 16 may be placed in jobs in private industry manufacturing war supplies, it was learned today.

The National Draft Board in Washington, it was revealed, is setting up a board policy that production of vital war materials takes priority over conscription of men into the army, if necessary.

With this in mind, officials of the draft board started conversations with aides of President Roosevelt and the labor division of the National Defense Commission to make the 6,500 local draft boards to be set up throughout the country clearing houses to guide men to jobs.

Told that there would be a critical shortage of skilled workers, draft board officials are formulating regulations that would allow the placing of skilled workers in defense industries in a special group that may never be called up for the compulsory year's military training.

Even unemployed men, who formerly were skilled workers, may be guided into defense jobs (Continued on Page Eight)

European Bulletins

ROME.—A hint that France as well as Britain will be driven from Africa if Italo-German plans are fulfilled was published today by the Relazioni Internazionali, organ of the Italian foreign office.

"France possesses positions in the Mediterranean and African continent which no longer correspond with her position as a second-rate power," the publication said.

HAVANA.—Cuba's Nazi party, legalized in 1938, was dissolved today under terms of a decree signed by Havana's provincial Governor Valdes Astolfi. Astolfi acted after the party's former leader and organizer, Juan Prohaska, declared he surrendered leadership to the late representative Delfin Yebra without legally notifying authorities of the change.

BERLIN.—Chancellor Hitler received Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano for a lengthy conference today. German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop also was present.

It was assumed that plans for future conduct of the war against Britain and the world-wide reception of the Italo-German-Japanese military pact, signed in Berlin yesterday, were among the topics discussed.

ROME.—British troops attempting a counter-attack on Italian positions in East Africa were hurled back, the Italian high command claimed today. The British "withdrew under losses," a communique, which also described widespread aerial activity in the Mediterranean, reported.

BERLIN.—Germany and Italy are preparing to forge a "new order" in Africa, authoritative government spokesmen revealed today. The revamping of the African continent would entail the exclusion of England and the probable establishment of an independent South African Union, it was stated.

Since enlisted men were never able to buy anything but beer in the camp, the ban applies only to 644 officers of the 44th Division.

GENERAL STRIKE IN EAST BALKED

Japanese Unable To Stop Activity In Shanghai; Marines On Hand

SHANGHAI, Sept. 28.—A Japanese fomented strike in Shanghai, designed to discredit American and foreign authority in the international settlement, was doomed to quick failure today.

The general strike, precipitated yesterday when Chinese coolies threw down their tools in municipal plants, was reportedly broken this afternoon when striking street car and bus operators reached an agreement.

Other strikers, discouraged by the presence of American marines who were ordered to stand by for emergency duty, and by the presence of the United States destroyers in the harbor, were expected to soon fall in line and resume work.

The American cruiser Augusta and a squadron of destroyers which were scheduled to sail have been held in port pending full settlement of the disturbance.

The strike had been ordered and directed by representatives of the Japanese-controlled Nanking government.

Settlement authorities today announced that pay increases and also been granted to 7,000 Chinese constables.

NAZIS PROMISE JAPS THEY CAN HANDLE RUSSIA

SHANGHAI, Sept. 28.—Heavy Japanese concessions, including restoration of half of Manchuria and a carving up of the Manchukuo empire, were exacted by Soviet Russia as her price for acquiescence to the new Italo-German-Japanese military pact, according to unconfirmed reports in Shanghai today.

In persuading Japan to sign the agreement, these advisers said, Germany gave assurances to Tokyo that the Reich could control Russia.

Moscow's alternative terms, these reports claimed, demand eradication of all fortifications along the Korean and Manchukuo frontiers facing Siberia and outer Mongolia and formal renunciation by Japan of any designs, territorial or otherwise, on Outer Mongolia.

Travellers from Siberia reportedly seeing huge signs proclaiming: "We want the return of Harbin. We want Port Arthur."

Next Move By Tokyo Being Watched; Japan Admits Grave Concern Over Relations With Uncle Sam As Result Of Action

SECRETARY HULL TO TAKE STEPS

Military Staff Talks To Be Considered With Britain And Latin-Americans As Result Of Italo-German-Jap Move

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

All over the world, in Washington, London, Berlin, Rome, Tokyo, Shanghai and virtually every other capital, there was one major issue today—the new Italo-German-Japanese military pact.

Everywhere it was debated as diplomats and government leaders tried to figure out:

- 1—What effect it will have on the course of the European war.
- 2—What will be Japan's next move.
- 3—What is Soviet Russia's reaction, and what if anything does Moscow plan to do about it.
- 4—What effect it will have on United States policy.

Countless other questions clustered about the latest diplomatic stroke of the axis powers, but in Washington there was no sign of official wavering or indication that the administration regarded the pact as a particular surprise.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull expressed the view of the United States government by saying the treaty "does not . . . substantially alter a situation which has existed for several years."

The administration planned a series of counter-moves to bring about closer cooperation among the United States, Britain and the Latin-American nations.

Chief among these was a series of military staff talks to be held between the United States general staff and military delegations from Latin American countries.

These delegations will be shown what the United States has to offer in air power, long range bombers and 400-mile-an-hour pursuit ships.

Approval by the United States senate of the Havana convention, establishing a commission of American states to control Western Hemisphere possessions of European states to prevent their seizure by Germany, drew this comment from Key Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee:

"It minimizes the effect of the solidarity . . . outlined in the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis treaty."

Blow At Imperialism

Japanese newspapers hailed the pact as a blow to "United States imperialism in the Far East" and Japanese officials frankly admitted their grave concern over the (Continued on Page Eight)

OHIO YOUTH, 15, FACES CHARGES IN DAD'S DEATH

UPPER SANDUSKY, Sept. 28.—Juvenile delinquency charges were to be filed today against 15-year-old Franklin Spears, of nearby Nevada, who assertedly shot his father to death because "Dad was drunk and was beating up on mother, and I wouldn't stand for it."

Spears told officers that he "didn't care" to attend his father's funeral at Potts Chapel, W. Va., this afternoon.

Prosecutor William Hunter said that, as the youth was not yet 16, he would be placed in the custody of the bureau of juvenile research. No further action will be taken until the bureau reports, Hunter said.

"Mom just had an operation, and was in no condition to take a beating," Hunter said the youth told him. The father weighed about 200 pounds, twice the weight of the youth's mother.

LEAF BURNERS WARNED!

The Circleville service department asked Saturday that property owners refrain from burning leaves on tarred streets in the city.

SUSPECT NABBED IN PHILADELPHIA MURDER INQUIRY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—Police today arrested a middle-aged unidentified man as a suspect in the brutal mutilation murder last Tuesday night of Mrs. Ethel Craft Atkins, 35, the auburn-haired mother once related by marriage to the South's wealthy Duke family.

Although few details were announced immediately, it was learned that Philadelphia, Montgomery County and state authorities swooped down on the suspect as he assertedly was walking near the Atkins home home in North Philadelphia.

The arrest came shortly after 2 a. m. in the vicinity of the modest dwelling where funeral services for the victim will be held later today and where the body was on view last night.

The name of the suspect was withheld, but detectives asserted he had been a companion of Mrs. Atkins on at least one occasion and was the man they had been searching for for the last several days.

Wearing only stockings and one white shoe, the woman was found clubbed and slashed to death in a vacant farmhouse near Horsesham, a week ago today.

HAMILTON JURY INDICTS THREE FOR FORGERIES

CINCINNATI, Sept. 28.—Charged with forging names other than their own to nominating petitions, Richard B. Tussey, Pittsburgh, Pa., state organizer of the Ohio Socialist-Labor party, was indicted by the Hamilton County grand jury today along with other alleged petition circulators.

Others indicted were Mrs. Dorothy K. Pickett, wife of Asa Pickett, Cincinnati Socialist-Labor organizer, and Carl H. Diefel, notary public. The latter was indicted on a charge of certifying an affidavit without administering the oath required by law.

It was learned that the grand jury would continue its investigation into the Socialist-Labor petitions in Hamilton County.

TIGERS PLAY SUPERB FOOTBALL TO HOLD LANCASTER TO 13-0 SCORE

Gales Score On Two Pass Plays

Fast-Charging Red, Black Forwards Halt Ground Attack Of Weighty Visitors; Penalties Hurt Locals; 2,000 There

Circleville High Tigers have a right today to feel that they won a tremendous moral victory over Lancaster's "mighty" Golden Gales Friday evening when they dropped a hard fought 13-0 football game. The contest, played on the Circleville field, attracted more than 2,000 fans, the largest audience to see a grid contest here since back in the days when old Everts took on and defeated the best Central Ohio and to offer.

Before the game common conversation went like this: "I hope our kids get through without being hurt"; "I think I'd settle for 40 points right now"; "Boy, are those guys big?"; and similar expressions.

But Coach Roy Black's athletes, well-trained and smarting under the riding they have taken all week because of the West Jefferson debacle last week, felt differently. They had seen Lancaster's varsity members come to Circleville Wednesday evening and Thursday evening, and they had reason to believe that the Gales were not training on those excursions. "A bunch of big Palookas," thought the wearers of the Red and Black who saw their opponents. And common belief in the dressing room before the game was that Lancaster was in for a surprise.

Coach Black really smiled after the gun sounded ending 48 minutes of play. He had driven his boys hard during the last week in practice and the game they played Friday evening proved that they meant business.

Line Does Yeoman Work

It was a hard-charging line, led by Clark Martin, and a sharp tackling secondary that stopped the Lancaster ground attack; stopped it so dead that passing was the only means the Gales had of gaining ground. Passes accounted for both touchdowns, one in the first five minutes of play being good from the five-yard line, and the other in the last five minutes being good from the nine. Bob Radebaugh was on the receiving end of the first toss by Householder, and Tom Taylor getting the last one on a toss by Bob Radebaugh. Gus Wright's placement was good for the extra point after the first score, but his effort after the second one was wide.

Circleville received at the start of the game and Geib ran the kick-off back to the 30. Householder bobbed up with Bobby Kline's pass over the line on the third play and was smeared on the 39. On the ninth play from scrimmage in which three first downs were made on smashes, Householder tossed to Radebaugh for the score.

Eby Runs 49 Yards

After Circleville had received again and failed to gain, a 15-yard holding penalty being costly, Eby jumped into the air and intercepted a Lancaster pass, running the ball from his own 36 to Lancaster's 15 before the fleet Radebaugh picked him up from behind. The Tigers were unable to gain and lost the ball on the 11.

Lancaster lost three yards on two tries with the center of the Tiger line smashing hard, and Russ Liston blocked a punt on the third play, Johnny Woods covering for Circleville on the 11. Another holding penalty of 15 yards hurt the Tigers again, and on the second play Kline intercepted a Circleville pass for Lancaster and juggled it to the 29.

The invaders picked up two first downs before a backfield fumble lost 12 yards, but Echols got off his only good punt of the evening, the ball going out on the Circleville 7. Kline picked up three and then passed to Jackson for a first down moving the ball to the 26. Kline made nine, and Geib sneaked for a first down, but this gain was nullified by a five yard penalty. Kline smashed the center for enough to make up the loss, though, and Jenkins smashed twice for eight, a Lancaster offside giving the Tigers another first down in midfield.

Passes Intercepted

Another pass was intercepted by Householder on the 50, but Dud Smallwood bobbed up with an interception for Circleville, moving the ball to the Lancaster 33. Wright returned the favor by snagging a Callihan pass for Lancaster, and after two more Lancaster passes, Callihan snagged another for an interception on the 29. Not to be outdone, Lancaster's Kline grabbed a Circleville pass and was downed on the 31 as the half ended.

The third period saw little action, the Tiger line continuing to outplay the heavier Lancaster forwards, but neither team getting anywhere. A couple of short Lancaster punts helped the Tiger cause, and Householder was almost smeared once behind his goal line when he went back to pass and was trapped, but he outran the defense and moved up to the 30.

The Tigers weren't able to go anywhere in particular, blockers being unable to move their men, and penalties bobbing up at inopportune times to take the wind

Giebell, York Heroes, Ben Chapman Goat As Detroit Grabs Title

By George E. Moise

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28—The winner and new champion—the Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers today owned the American League pennant, just five years after they won their last championship, because Rookie Pitcher Floyd Giebell was able to decision Bob Feller 2 to 0 before a hostile crowd of 45,553 in Cleveland municipal stadium.

They also had the pennant because the New York Yankees eliminated themselves from the race by losing 6 and 2 to the Philadelphia Athletics. And they won because of Ben Chapman, Cleveland left fielder and goat of the ball game.

Three times Chapman struck out, and every time a hit would have meant a run. He fanned with men on first and third, on first and second, and on second and third. And he just missed catching Rudy York's drive that dropped into the edge of the stands for a home run and the decision.

The homer that won the game in the fourth inning, Charlie Gehringer was on first as a result of one of Feller's six walks. Hank Greenberg had struck out and left it up to York, and York came through. The drive, near the left field foul line, dropped into the very edge of the stands, so near the field, in fact, that ing up with tackles that saved scores.

The entire squad came out in good physical shape, except for some bruises that will come out in the wash. Joe Staley, who was kept out of the starting lineup because of his bad ankle, was in there part of the time doing his best. George Trego, taking it easy because of a broken nose, was leading cheers on the bench, acting as nurse to each boy as he was replaced in the lineup.

Greenfield Next Week

The Tigers play their first out of town game of the year next week, traveling to Greenfield to meet Eldon Newland and his McClain crew. The game will mark the Red and Black's first South Central League game of the year, too.

SOME NOTES: Ye janitor witnessed something Friday night that he has never seen before on a high school lot: Lancaster's team managers carried varied brands of "chawing" tobacco in their jeans with which to supply the Gales' beef trust. . . . Three Tigers, Clark Martin, Johnny Sabine and Frank Geib, played all 48 minutes of the ball game. . . . Lancaster's crowd was so dumfounded by the lack of scoring that it hardly realized the second touchdown was scored, only a light cheer coming from several hundred who came to Circleville in worse shape than they left the Tigers. J. Radebaugh and Householder being used up considerably. . . . As this column has said several times this year, Coach Black has a sweet crop of ends with Jackson, Woods, Smallwood, Carr, Bach and the injured Trego to pick from. . . . Jackson, Woods and Carr are juniors, the other three sophomores. . . . The Tiger safety didn't get to run back a single punt, all the Gale boots being short and most of them out of bounds. . . . One of the happiest men in the crowd was Hildeburn Martin, whose son Clark, was the game's outstanding star.

SPENCER SCOTT WINS

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 28—Spencer Scott, winner of the Hambletonian stakes, today was the Kentucky Futurity 3-year-old champion after winning a run-off heat from Kuno and Eton, who finished in that order. Spencer Scott won the fourth and final heat postponed from Thursday, in 2:02 1/4.

CINCINNATI TO HURL JIM TURNER AGAINST PIRATES

CINCINNATI, Sept. 28—The champion Cincinnati Reds were to send their "75-year-old battery," Milkman Jim Turner and Catcher Jimmy Wilson, to the baseball wars today in the second of a three-game series with Pittsburgh.

The Pirates yesterday clinched themselves a fourth-place share of the World Series Melon by edging the Reds in 10 innings, 4 to 3, although the Reds used three mound aces—Derringer, Beggs and Moore—in an effort to salvage the game.

SOUTHERN METHODIST 9-6 WINNER OVER U. C. L. A.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28—Southern Methodist University upset the U. C. L. A. Bruins 9 to 6 last night when Preston Johnson booted a field goal in the closing minutes of the intersectional game.

BUCKEYES OPEN BIG GRID YEAR WITH PITT FOE

Strausbaugh Injury To Cut Offensive Power Of Team Coached By Schmidt

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28—Ohio State opens its 1940 football season this afternoon against Pittsburgh in Ohio Stadium.

The Scarlet and Grey gridders, champions of the Western Conference last season, face the opening of the current season burdened by a nationwide fanfare of generous press notices.

Coach Francis A. Schmidt, commencing his seventh season as the Bucks' gridmaster, has been forced to juggle his original backfield plans due to the absence of Jim Strausbaugh, ace left half-back, who has been out of practice since last Saturday when he was carried from a practice game with a badly sprained ankle. Strausbaugh will be out of the Pitt game and may be kept out of the Purdue encounter the following Saturday. In his place will be Richard Fisher, a junior who won his letter last fall and whose continual improvement has been heartening to the Buck coaching staff.

Two veterans from last season's Ohio State backfield will be ready for the Panthers. They are Don Scott, quarterback, and Jim Langhurst, captain and fullback. Coach Schmidt will probably reserve his final decision as to his starting right halfback until shortly before game time. Chief candidates for the top call are Tom Kinkade, letter winner in 1939, and Paul Sweeney, a sophomore.

Schmidt will probably start Charlie Anderson and Frank Clair at the ends, Jim Daniell and Charlie Maag at the tackles, Lennie Thom and Bill Nosker at the guards and Claude White at center. All are lettermen.

Bowser Has Veterans

Coach Charley Bowser, Pitt mentor, will likewise call on a veteran eleven to open the season. His choices, all lettermen, will most likely be Stanley Gervais and Joe Rettinger at the ends, Ted Konetsky and John Benz at the tackles, Rudy Gradisek and Ralph Fife at the guards, and Stephen Sisco at center. The backs will be Mike Sekela, quarterback, Edgar Jones, left half, Bob Thurbon, right half, and George Kracum, fullback.

Ohio State followers anticipate the toughest opening game the Buck gridders have ever been called on to play. Pitt's last appearance on the Ohio State schedule was in 1936 when the Panthers downed the Bucks 6 to 0 in Ohio Stadium.

No Ohio State team since 1935 has had such an advance buildup. Predictions of experts from coast to coast hang Damocletian-like over the heads of the Buck gridders as they open the 1940 season.

Starting Lineups:

| Ohio State | Pos. | Pittsburgh |
|------------|------|------------|
| Anderson   | LE   | Gervais    |

HORNSBY IS MISSING

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 28—The whereabouts of Rogers Hornsby, former Major League baseball star and recently manager of the Oklahoma City club, today was a mystery to his wife. Mrs. Hornsby, who advertised in a newspaper for information concerning him, said she had not heard from her husband for several days, and was holding important mail for him. The Oklahoma City club closed its season ten days ago.

HEROES AND GOATS

HEROES—Floyd Giebell, Tigers, a rookie righthander who pitched Detroit into the American League pennant; Arky Vaughan, Pirates, whose double in the tenth inning beat the Reds and clinched fourth place in the National League for the Pirates; Rudy York, Tigers, whose homer accounted for all the runs against Bob Feller.

GOATS—Ben Chapman, Indians, who whiffed three times in the clutch and had his hands on York's circuit smash before it fell into the stands; Whitey Moore, Reds, whose wildness put Pittsburgh's winning run on base in the tenth.

DUROCHER PICKS REDS TO DEFEAT A. L. CHAMPIONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Who will win the World Series? Reds or Tigers?

Leo Durocher, Brooklyn Dodger's pilot, American League alumnus and former world series star, picks the Reds.

Jack Doyle, Broadway oracle, who has made book on sports for half a century, picks the Tigers.

Jack's opening slate today makes the Tigers favorites at 7 to 10 and he is quoting even money on the Reds. For the opening game, he is quoting 4 to 5 and you pick 'em.

"The National League is due to win one," said Durocher today. "They have the old law of averages and three great pitchers working for them."

"If Cleveland had won the A. L. pennant, I might have picked them because of Mel Harder and Bob Feller who might have harnessed the Reds' power which lies in their right hand hitters."

"But the Reds won't have to face such tight pitching against the Tigers and it is pitching that brings home the bacon in a World Series."

"Here's the way I look at this series: The Reds have three great starters in Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters and Gene Thompson. They've gone through the World Series and stood up well against a great Yankee team."

"Rudy York and Hank Greenberg are real power hitters. The 75 home runs they've made between them shows that. But great pitching can show that. But great pitching can show that. But great pitching can show that."

"The Reds, of course, can't begin to hit with the Tigers, but Ernie Lombardi and Frank McCormick are tough enough for anybody up at that plate."

"The Reds will show a tighter defense. All year long they have been those tight well-pitched ball games. They won about 40 of their games by one run."

"And the Reds are faster. Some of those boys really can travel."

"Bill McKechnie has had plenty of chance to rest his pitchers, giving them just enough work to keep them on edge, and they are all set to give their best."

MR. RUTH (WHO IS HE?) PICKS ALL-STAR CREW

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Babe Ruth, former New York Yankee home run slugger, picked his 18th annual all-star baseball team today as part of his festivities as the year's final baseball instructor at the World's Fair, but he entirely overlooked the Cincinnati Reds, National League champions. Three Detroit Tigers, champions of the American League, were named on the team to head the list numerically.

The Babe's all-stars follow in batting order.

Interior Of St. Joseph's Catholic Church Is Undergoing Decoration

Beautiful Work Being Done For Congregation; Two More Weeks Needed

For the last four months decorators have been redecorating the interior of St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The work is expected to be completed within the next two weeks.

A color scheme of various shades of red, blue and green has been used in the decoration. In the color scheme, red symbolizes Love, Fervor, Holy Zeal, Youth, Blood and Martyrdom; blue symbolizes Heaven, Truth, Faithfulness, Wisdom and Charity and green symbolizes Growth, Life and Immortality. The orange-yellow dome in the church signifies divine wisdom and goodness. On either side of the main altar E. Paul Wilhelm, the decorator, has painted angels, one directly above the altar of St. Joseph and the other above the altar of the Blessed Virgin. Also above the altar of St. Joseph has been designed the symbol of St. Joseph, consisting of a lily and a carpenter's square and above the Blessed Virgin the symbol of the Blessed Virgin.

Six different symbols, each painted in gold leaf, decorate the bases of each arch in the over-structure, while the fourteen stations adorning the side walls are tinted in various shades of red, green and blue. The stations were painted by Mrs. Juanita Wilhelm, wife of the decorator.

Mr. Wilhelm, a resident of Dayton, studied art at Konigsburg, East Prussia graduating in 1929 and coming to America the same year. He has been an instructor at the Art Institute in Dayton and at the Federal Reformatory in Chillicothe, where he spent four years decorating the dining hall. When he has completed his work here, he will return to Dayton.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: What can you tell me about oak apples?

ANSWER: The galls, an inch or so in diameter that are found on the leaves of oak trees are caused by an insect laying its egg on the leaf, which irritation causes the growth of the gall. They are found not only on oaks but many different plants and assume various shapes and sizes. There is nothing that you can do for them though fortunately they seldom are sufficiently serious to cause damage.

QUESTION: I have just planted a white and purple lilac near each other. Is there any danger of their mixing?

ANSWER: There is absolutely no possibility of one plant mixing with another as far as the parent plants are concerned. This is true not only of lilacs but of phlox, gladiolus, and iris. If, however, you were to sow the seeds of these plants you might find they had been cross-pollinated and would produce something entirely different in color from the parents.

QUESTION: Where can I use a Colorado blue spruce in my yard? My yard is not very large and yet I feel I would like to use one.

ANSWER: The Colorado blue spruce with its rather striking color is very difficult to use in a small yard because of the fact that its very color makes it so conspicuous that it attracts attention to itself rather than to the house and the rest of the planting. If it is used it should be used in connection with other evergreens at one side, on the corner of the yard. It should never be planted in the middle of the lawn and seldom directly in front of the house, as is so commonly seen.

QUESTION: What vigorous growing vine with small leaves, somewhat like a grape vine, has lavender and turquoise berries?

ANSWER: This is an old-fashioned vine that we still find growing occasionally in gardens—the porcelain ivy, Ampelopsis heterophylla. It is an excellent vine with berries during the late summer and early fall. It will grow in sun or considerable shade. This vine should be used far more extensively.

QUESTION: I would greatly appreciate any information you can send me for the care and growth of gladiolus. After about a dozen years I have accumulated about 10,000 of them, so I think it is time that I learn to raise them correctly. S.A.U., Cleveland.

ANSWER: I suggest that you ask your county agricultural agent for a copy of the extension bulletin on gladiolus and dahlias. This will give you complete instructions for the proper care and growth of your glads.

BUT ONE ISSUE—DEFENSE

BEFORE France fell, a militant clergyman reminds the American public, people in France were not talking about the war. With Hitler at their gates, they were quarrelling about politics. Clare Booth in her recent book, "Europe In The Spring," makes that very plain. And Britain was doing much the same thing until, almost too late, her people saw their terrible mistake and turned to face the peril.

"Can America learn her lesson from this?" the minister asks. "Think of the precious weeks we lost in quarrelling about conscription. And the churches, I am ashamed to say, were ringleaders along with the politicians who guessed wrong about the convictions of their constituents."

Many months ago, he continues, Walter Lippman urged the adjournment of politics. But "now politics are boiling like the cauldron of the witches in MacBeth. What a joy this must bring to Hitler! Mr. Willkie and Mr. Roosevelt, as well as their stupid campaign managers, will soon be hurling hatred-stirring charges at one another."

"There is only one issue. To deny this fact is to play directly into the hands of the enemy. That issue is the defense of America. To create that defense without loss of precious time requires universal cooperation."

The churches, as he suggests, can do much for such unity.

FOOLING BRIGHT PEOPLE

ANON-PROFESSIONAL magician makes this interesting statement:

"I have found that college professors, teachers, and professional men . . . and women in general, also executives, are easier to deceive in magic than are children or people without education. My explanation of this strange fact is that it is a matter of manipulating people's attention."

"The magician does not accomplish his feats because he moves his hands quicker than the other fellow can move his eyes. What the magician does is to mis-direct the attention. The more orderly the mind, the more capable it is of arriving at the logical solution of a problem—and the easier it is for the one versed in the art of mis-direction to perform the miracle."

"We give them a false problem to work on, and while the mind is busy running up this blind alley we are busy showing them something apparently connected but really quite different." Thereby seeming to "prove" absurd things.

Maybe this frank statement explains some of the political proofs and conver-

Up early and stood shivering at the sight of frost on the porch roof. Soon snow will be there. The nights are taking on a real snap as indicated by the fact that Bob Brehmer is wearing a cap. When the temperature drops to the twenties Bob will button his coat and when zero is reached on goes a vest. I have been told that he owns an overcoat, but never have seen him wear one. He actually freezes me.

Saw Herb Mengert, the Cincinnati Enquirer's famed political writer, in town, he making a survey of the state to determine what the Buckeyes may do in November. Could be of no real help to him, but did say that some of the Democratic leaders claim that Pickaway County will go 2,500 for Roosevelt, while the Republican chiefs say that the county will be on the Willkie side by a comfortable margin. What really will happen is somewhere between the two claims and one man's guess is as good as another.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

KNUDSEN RESISTS PRESSURE
WASHINGTON—The New Deal has attracted many diverse personalities to its orbit, from Professor Tugwell to Nelson Rockefeller, but probably the most unusual is a big grizzly-bear sort of individual named Bill Knudsen, who once opposed almost everything there was to oppose about the New Deal but who is now turning out airplanes, tanks, big guns and battleships for national defense.

Knudsen is unique from two points of view: (1) his naive simplicity in a town which dotes on rank and protocol; and (2) the gradual change which has come over his political and social outlook.

Knudsen is by no means a New Dealer, yet he is by no means the champion of big business that he was before coming to Washington. Compared with some other dollar-a-year men on the National Defense Commission, Knudsen shines forth as a crusader.

That, however, comes later in the story. For the moment walk into the office of William Signius Knudsen in the ornate Federal Reserve Building and find there a man built like a lumberjack, his coat slung over a chair, his hat on his head, a pencil clutched in his ham-like hand.

Knudsen got into the habit of keeping his hat on in the Detroit auto factories, and he still says: "A man can think better under a hat."

DANISH EMIGRANT BOY

He had moved to Detroit after operating a bicycle factory in Buffalo; and he had moved to Buffalo after spending the first 21 years of his life in his home in Denmark. His pay in Buffalo was $10.50 a week at first.

After the bicycle gave way to the automobile, Knudsen got a job with Henry Ford, where he boosted his salary within a short time to $50,000. Then he quarreled with Ford, was snapped up by General Motors, and gave Ford the battle of his life with the low cost Chevrolet. This battle took Knudsen up to the top of General Motors with a salary of $300,000—which he has now surrendered for $1 a year.

It was as head of General Motors two years ago that Knudsen came to grips with the Michigan sit-down strikers, and probably reached the acme of his opposition to Roosevelt and New Deal encouragement of labor.

Knudsen is a production man, not a banker. Most of his life has been spent handling men and machines. He let Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of General Motors, worry about dividends and bond issues, while he concentrated on the speed and efficiency of production. Knudsen can read a blue-print of a complicated machine with more facility than most people read the comics.

Therefore, when Roosevelt was looking around for a man to speed national defense last summer, he called on Knudsen.

Vitamin Overdosage Not Possible

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
● Vitamins, as I intimated yesterday, are the fertilizers of the human body. We need only small amounts of them and they act subtly to influence our well being.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

our growth, our hardness (resistance to infections) just as fertilizers affect the same general features of plants.

The question arises—and a very natural one it is in view of the prevalent craze to get all sorts of extra vitamins in concentrated form and otherwise—whether we can get too much vitamins. Plants get too much fertilizer sometimes. Can we overdo the vitamin business?

Most of what we hear is just the opposite kind of advice—here is Surgeon-General Parran, of the Public Health Service, telling us that there is a "new starvation" in the United States that hits two out of five citizens, resulting in faulty nutrition. "More than 40 per cent of the people in the country are not getting a diet adequate to maintain good health and vigor," writes Dr. Parran.

Deficiency Diseases Rare

I gave reasons in the first article this week for believing that this sort of talk is grossly exaggerated. Physicians who see patients in charity clinics are familiar with conditions in all walks of life—particularly those walks of life where food is not abundant—and yet they find that deficiency diseases are still rare.

But people are undoubtedly taking vitamin products in large quantities. So the question is pertinent—does this do any harm?

Experiments have been carried out to determine this, and the result of them seems to be that there is no ground to fear that except in one instance, any ill effects come from overdosage. Vitamin A is obtained by the body on the

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO
"Oh, talk's cheap," said the girl to Otto. "I wonder how many guys have told me what they're going to do TOMORROW." She knew perfectly well that reference to past affairs with men always infuriated him. "Now, let's get this straight, as I said before. I know something of what you've got on your mind. You don't tell me a lot, but that don't matter. I don't want to know details—it's results that appeal to me. You've got some sort of a stunt on, and you reckon there's big money at the end of it. Maybe you're right—but I know, just naturally, that it isn't on the level, and if the big money's there, the big risk is there as well. You may flop down on it."

"I shall not do that. There is no risk at all—practically no risk. It is safe."

"So you say!" she sneered. "And that's another tale I've heard before. However, that can go for the moment. I like you, Otto; you're a good guy and you've been decent with me. And I won't mind marrying you—so long as you can cough up the goods. And maybe I wouldn't mind waiting two or three weeks to see if your game, whatever it is, comes off."

His eyes suddenly lighted up. "Ah! You will do that? You will promise me?"

She raised her hand to check him.

"Now we're getting to it! I'll promise nothing, understand—just NOTHING—except that I'll wait two or three weeks to see if you can deliver the goods—and if you can, I'll marry you. But I know what's in the back of your mind—you want me to promise I won't look at another man until that three weeks is up! That I'll just sit down with a pack of patience cards while you go off on this trip of yours to God knows where, and to do God knows what. Well, there's nothing doing, that's all. You may be on the level; maybe you are! This trip of yours may be just business, or there may be another woman at the end of it, how do I know? The answer is I don't know, and I don't care—but I'm not playing ing at numbers, and that's flat!"

She finished breathlessly—and the lack of breath was due to more than the length of the speech or the force with which she had flung it at him. For now was the actual moment, she knew that. He would make his decision one way or the other—either to offer to take her with him, or to leave her behind.

She played her last card with neat finesse.

"This fellow I was talking to last night isn't so bad, anyway. He's amusing, and he seems to have plenty of dough!" She turned to the mirror once more, but this time she smiled at her reflection self-complacently, and gently caressed her flame-colored hair.

"Ach!" The ejaculation burst from him like an explosion, as he turned on his heel and walked slowly toward the window once more, his hands thrust into his pockets. He hunched his head and bent in thought. Suddenly he turned again.

"Look you here! Sometimes you say to me that you would like a long trip in a plane. How would you like to come with me, eh? Then you will see that there is no woman at the other end, as you say."

She had to fight hard to keep any sign of triumph from her manner, and succeeded admirably. Instead, she laughed, with a sort of hard carelessness.

"Don't get me wrong, sweet. One. I don't care tuppence if there IS another woman—or twenty women. I don't care if you go off and never come back again—you're not the only man in the world, and I've never had to go short of one—or half a dozen, for that matter—yet. So don't make any stupid mistakes."

He sensed that he had struck the wrong note.

"Ah, but you would like the trip, wouldn't you—with me?"

"Oh, I dare say I'd like it, all right. Where's it to, anyway?"

But he frowned and shook his head.

"That I cannot quite tell you. It is a secret. You know that this trip is to do with the plans that will make the big money for me—and for you. Really, perhaps I ought not to take you—her heart sank suddenly—but I cannot leave you here—with that fellow. Maybe you will see things—but you must keep your mouth shut. I think you will get them. Anyway, I think you will not talk."

"Don't be a fool!" she snapped at him. "You know I don't talk. Haven't I seen enough to tell me already that you're on the crook, but I haven't talked, have I? What do I care, anyway? Money's money, however it comes. That's my motto."

"No," he said slowly. "I do not think you will talk. If you do, it will not be for long—remember, there are others in this besides me, and they know how to deal with those who talk." The movement of his great hands was illustrative.

"So you will come on this trip?"

Her reply was a triumph of apparent carelessness.

"I suppose so!"

"Good! We must start soon, so you had better get ready. You can bring only one medium-sized bag. The place we go to is warm—you will need light frocks—those that you wash will be good. Also, because sometimes at night it is cold, a warm coat and a jersey."

"Oh, all right! I'll see about it now. I suppose. Guess I'll have to go out and buy a few things, too."

"Give me first a kiss."

She kissed him, and then swung out of the room—jaunty, careless, defiant—but eager to get away so that she might give way to her triumph and excitement. And as she went she thought, a little sadly: "The kiss of Caiaphas!"

A little later in the day X received an enigmatic telegram, which, however, he could decipher quite easily. It read:

"Cotton in some place where warm by day and cold by night leave today.—C."

By the time he received that Coral Merriew, sitting beside Otto Britton in a powerful car, was well on her way to Chenham. But, actually, they did not leave until night. At Chenham there was much activity in the Nest that afternoon and evening. There are a number of hard ground places in the marshes where an airplane can make a good landing, and it is not unusual at certain times of the year to see bonfires out on the flats. That night there were four, in a sort of square, and soon after midnight a slow-flying plane swooped down into the center of that square. It took a man and a woman aboard, and went off again immediately, heading southeast.

It was Gun's alert mind and quick action that saved him. Without hesitation he pushed the automatic into place in front of the keys and, in the same movement, shook Trent roughly, calling:

"Hey, Trent! Come on, wake up! There isn't much time if we've got to talk, you know!"

After a moment or two Trent roused and sat up, stretching and yawning.

"Good Lord, is it time? I don't know what's the matter with me! I've been sleeping like a corpse—never heard that damned alarm clock go, either—and, by heck, I've got a mouth like one, too. Feel as though I've been on the booze, but I certainly haven't!"

Then he looked at Gun, who was coolly completing his dressing.

"You were up pretty sharp, for all your tiredness."

"Naturally," said Gun, lacing his shoes. "If Hazeldene has the slightest suspicion of what I've been up to—well, the whole thing's finished, and he'll probably strangle me to boot. And he's a stronger man than I am."

They finished dressing—or Gun did, since the other had nothing to put on except his boots—and Trent led the way to the office.

"Now," he said, when they were safely ensconced. "Let's hear what you've got to say."

"Nothing," replied Gun, sullenly. "Until I've had a drink and a smoke."

"Brandy?"

"Thanks."

Trent poured out a liberal one and passed the box of cigarettes.

"Well? I'm waiting for you."

"Here's the idea in a nutshell," said Gun. "You must contrive somehow or other to let Hazeldene have a good meal, a drink or two, and a smoke. When he's had those, after all this time, he'll be in an expansive mood, or I'm no psychologist. If I try, then, it won't be difficult to pump him. I'll get all the information I can, and hand it over to you—on conditions."

"And what are the conditions?"

"Just freedom—a return to civilization."

"That's mean—for yourself?"

Gun appeared to speak with an effort.

"Certainly! I'm playing for my own hand."

Trent considered this. At length he said:

"Very well, I'll concede your terms. Now, as regards this meal. Have you got any money on you?"

"A few pounds—yes."

"Very well. The day after tomorrow, you will approach the guard on the gate. You will offer him a bribe to get you some food, a drink, etc. He will agree and will bring you the stuff. You can boast to Hazeldene of how you have managed it—or, better still, let him witness the transaction. Then he will suspect nothing. We will have another interview, planned like this one, the same night. How does that strike you?"

"Sounds all right to me," Gun admitted.

"Then we'll leave it like that. And now, you'd better get back."

"I'm ready when you are—and the sooner the better, in case Hazeldene wakes up."

"Then come along."

Trent rose.

"There's still time for a quick one for the road," Gun suggested. The other laughed.

"Making the most of your opportunities, aren't you?" he said, as he turned to the bottle and glass.

"Why not?" asked Gun. As he spoke he reached out for the cigarette box, and put a handful in his pocket. "It isn't every day you'll get a man to turn traitor for a drink and a few gaspers, you know," he added with bitterness.

Trent laughed.

"Necessity is the mother of more things than invention," he remarked, as he handed the tumbler to Gun.

"And, by heavens, you've proved it!" said Gun, as he tossed off the contents.

It was drawing near to dawn, and the night was, if anything, darker than when they had come. Gun could see even less than before—but he knew all he wanted to know, for the moment.

They arrived back at the enclosure without incident, and as he packed through the gate Gun said in a low voice:

"The day after tomorrow, then. That really means tomorrow, now, of course?"

"That's right—tomorrow."

"Good! Oh, by the way, give the guard a few cigarettes for me tonight, will you?"

Trent chuckled.

"Blackmail, eh? Very well!"

Hunsicker Home Scene Of Tea For Bride-Elect

More Than 100 Call
During Afternoon
Function

Mrs. Clark K. Hunsicker and Miss Margaret Hunsicker of 146 West Union Street were hostesses at a tea Friday honoring Miss Mary Louise Davis, 2341 Onandaga Drive, Columbus, bride-elect of Mr. Robert Miller Patton. Mr. Patton is the nephew of Mrs. Hunsicker, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Patton of 2215 Bryden Road. Mrs. Patton will be remembered as Marguerite Courtwright of Circleville.

Large bouquets of colorful garden flowers including marigolds, zinnias and cosmos in addition to a beautiful arrangement of deep red roses made a brilliant setting for the outstanding social affair of the fall season. More than 100 guests called between the hours of 3 and 6 p. m. to meet Miss Davis.

Mrs. Hunsicker received in a frock of medium blue lace, a large lavender orchid forming her shoulder corsage. Miss Hunsicker's black afternoon frock, smart with its accent of gold jewelry was complemented with a single pink rose corsage. Miss Davis wore black with deep yoke of dusty pink, single white tube roses with an outline of tiny green leaves forming the quaint nosegay completing her outfit.

Mrs. Patton, mother of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Edwin H. Davis, mother of the bride, wore smart fall models of black.

Tea was served in the dining room by candle light, the attractive table having a center arrangement of snapdragons, yellow, pink and white pompons and baby breath in a diamond shaped silver container on an oblong mirror. Fern leaves intermingled with vines with tiny white blossoms outlined the centerpiece completing the decorations.

Mrs. Eagleton Dunn of Columbus and Mrs. Alva Courtwright of Ashville served ice during the two periods of the tea. Mrs. David Buchanan of Akron and Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger of East Main Street presiding at the beautiful coffee and tea services.

The assisting hostesses were Mrs. B. W. Young, Mrs. A. L. Winder, Mrs. Felix Caldwell, Mrs. Frank J. Bennett, Mrs. A. D. Newmyer, Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Mrs. Lemuel Weldon, Mrs. Robert Adkins of Circleville and Miss Margaret Dunlap, Williamsport.

Mrs. E. E. Ritter of Columbus was present from out-of-town in addition to those previously mentioned.

Mrs. McDill Hostess
Six guests including Mrs. H. W. Campbell, Mrs. Kenneth List, Mrs. George LeMay, Mrs. W. D. Heiskell, Mrs. Edna Newhouse and Mrs. Russell Wardell of Williamsport were invited in addition to club members when Mrs. Russell McDill of Frankfort entertained her contract bridge club Friday at her home.

Dinner was served at 7 p. m. at small tables centered with vases of snapdragons and blue larkspur. Games of contract bridge were enjoyed during the evening, the score prizes going to Mrs. List and Mrs. Lee Luelien.

Club members playing were Mrs. Luelien, Mrs. Harry McGhee, Mrs. Sam Metzger, Mrs. Fred Tipton, Miss Laura McGhee and Mrs. McDill.

Women's Social Club
More than 60 members and guests heard Mrs. John H. Dunlap, Sr., of near Williamsport give an excellent talk on "Mexico" at the first fall session of the Women's Social Club of the Presbyterian Church Friday in the social room. Mrs. Dunlap told of the very interesting places visited during a trip to Mexico which she and Mr. Dunlap enjoyed last winter.

Starting with a brief history of the country, she first interested the audience with the climate, topography and vegetation of the land itself. A keen observer, Mrs. Dunlap carried the group with her on a verbal tour of the cities with their beautiful homes and cathedrals and also on the many

EDITORIAL AMERICA

America—the land of the free and the home of the brave! How beautiful that line of our national anthem sounds to every true American boy and girl living in this present time of war hysteria!

No doubt everyone of us feels the joy weling up in our hearts when we see what American patriotism has been doing for us in the last few months.

Just stop! Look! Listen! See all those tiny flags pasted to automobile windshields? Hear all the patriotic songs? Why? The answer to this question rests in our love for America.

True Americans do not want war in this country. High school boys and girls want to be able to get up each morning singing with gusto, "I Am an American," to be singing, "God Bless America" and "The Star Spangled Banner" without danger of death.

While American boys and girls are going to school, those in other lands are hurrying to bomb-proof shelters. Their ancient and treasured buildings and works of art are being shattered. Truly none of us wishes to see like conditions in "this land of ours."

When we hear an airplane dropping overhead, we simply think of it as another one of hundreds of its kind. But is it? Yes, at present but this huge machine, floating on air, may well become another of Uncle Sam's birds of protection hovering over his children.

But in Europe, today, a plane overhead is something to be dreaded. It carries a cargo of death. Just to note the comparison between airplane in America and one in Europe or in Eastern Asia makes us wonder why hungry war lords use them in such a disastrous manner, as a weapon of death and destruction to countless thousands of innocent people.

Our patriotism and love for our country makes us wonder if these hungry war lords really have hearts or lumps of clay in their bodies.

Let's each and everyone of us be true to our country and not permit any one man or group of men to make a Flanders Field of America.

—Marianne Bosworth

Washington Merry-Go Round

the shoulder, completely devoid of fol-de-rol. When you go in to see him he says: "This is Knudsen." When he says he'll give you the information you've asked for, he takes your telephone number and calls you back personally. He doesn't bother too much with secretaries.

Also Knudsen has become powerful. Congressmen like and trust him. When national defense questions are before congressional committees, frequently their members ask: "Well, what does Knudsen think?" His opinion is so respected that next to the President and Jesse Jones he has become the most powerful figure in Washington.

This power is important. For at the moment Bill Knudsen stands at a crossroads. He can use his power either for big business or for the public.

CITADEL OF REACTION

To understand this, you have to understand that the National Defense Commission has brought back most of the high-powered legal and financial crew who ran the NRA, and who ran it into the ground.

As young Courtland Barnes, son-in-law of Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, once bluntly expressed it: "Through this Defense Commission we plan to win back all the things Roosevelt took away from us in the early days of the New Deal."

And judging by the personnel of the Defense Commission, they have a pretty good chance. Most of the members have spent their lives working for the business firms which now are producing goods for the national defense.

For instance, Robert E. Wilson, head of Pan American Petroleum, a subsidiary of Standard Oil (Indiana), is the Defense Commission's adviser on oil. And the Commission has recommended vigorously against the Justice Department's prosecuting the oil companies.

Also Joseph Rovinsky, vice president of the Chase National Bank and a director of Patino tin mines, is serving on the commission at a time when it wants to buy and smelt large quantities of tin. And perhaps by pure coincidence, the Defense Commission has maneuvered to swing the U. S. tin deal to Patino, despite efforts by the State Department in the opposite direction.

These are able men and their experience is essential for national defense. However, their slant is pro-business rather than pro-public. For instance, the Government is paying cash to certain companies to build airplane and munitions plants; also paying for the machinery inside them. Certain National Defense Commissioners contend that after the emergency is over, private industry should have the right to buy these plants from the Government.

However, the War and Navy Departments contend that they may need the plants for another emergency, that they cannot afford, next time, to be caught short-handed. Therefore, they want the Government, rather than business, to have the first option regarding the disposition of the plants.

In this dispute, Bill Knudsen's word is important. More and more, recently, it has been thrown against industry which he once ruled, and with the New Deal which he once opposed.

MORGENTHAU'S ADVICE
Henry Morgenthau had a talk with Knudsen not long ago regarding the big business lobbies which operate with such smoothness in Washington.

"The more you've been around here, Bill," said the Secretary of the Treasury, "the more you'll find that if these pressure groups once get you on the run, there's no stopping them. They'll push you further and further, and get more and more out of you. The only thing they understand is a flat NO—and at the very start."

So Bill Knudsen is getting to be a NO man when it comes to business pressure inside the National Defense Commission. And his philosophy regarding his adopted country, as he expresses it, is: "America has done a lot for me and I have American grandchildren. I am working for America and for them."

ROUTE 23 MISHAP FATAL

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28 — Sheriff's deputies today were to question the driver of an auto which struck and killed Charles E. Walker, 72, just south of the Columbus city limits. Walker assertedly was standing in the center of the highway.

Arms Rushed for Draft Army

MASS production of arms for America's army, soon to be swelled by conscription, is being rushed throughout the country. Here is a scene at the Colt plant in Hartford, Conn., where .30 and .50 calibre machine guns are being turned out. Long lines of the guns, many for use in aircraft, are being checked before going to the finishing room.

Sixth Case Of Paralysis Is Quarantined In Ross

Ross County's sixth infantile paralysis case was reported Friday by Ross County Health Commissioner Dr. R. E. Bower. The victim is Charles Wesley Garne, 3, Tong Hollow, Paxton Township. Dr. Bower reported that the child is seriously ill.

Four other cases in Ross County, now under quarantine, are to be released soon. The first Ross County case was dismissed several weeks ago.

Meanwhile, Pickaway county's two infantile paralysis cases, one at Derby and the other at New Holland, are being carefully guarded, the health commissioner reports. Elaine Stoker, 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stoker, of near Atlanta, is now under doctor's care and reported to be in a satisfactory condition. The Stoker family has been quarantined. Two-year-old Gary Eugene Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Berlyn Cox, of Derby, is in University Hospital, Columbus, where he is being treated for a very mild case of the disease.

Commissioner A. D. Blackburn and Health Nurse Margaret Hunsicker have completed their preliminary inspections of the eighteen county schools, buildings and premises were inspected and samples of drinking water sent to the State laboratory, proved to be free from pollution with the exception of two schools. During the first visit, 2,795 children were inspected and a Health and Immunity chart for each grade sent up.

On September 23, the health commissioner and nurse began the second visit to the schools, giving complete physical examinations to all first grade pupils and vaccinating for small pox and immunizing for diphtheria children upon parental request.

So far, three schools have been visited and 132 first graders examined. Fifty three children have been vaccinated and 55 have been given the diphtheria toxoid. Six school bus drivers were given physical examinations.

During the month, one case of para-typhoid was reported in the county, an investigation was made and two wells and one cistern tested.

County Health Nurse Miss Hunsicker delivered 14 birth certificates during the month and held 18 conferences with women for the health council.

THIEF BREAKS INTO CAR, TAKES FRIEDMAN'S GOODS

Milton Friedman, East Mound Street, told Columbus police Friday that a thief had broken into his automobile, parked at Lynn and Pearl Streets and stole 80 men's lounging robes, valued at $350.

Friedman, a salesman for a Chicago concern, said the thief had broken a ventilator window to enter the car.

Mazolith is a name for artificial wood and is derived from "stone made from corn."

NATIONAL GUARD LOSES SEVEN THROUGH PHYSICAL DISABILITY

GENERAL LIGHT, OTHERS LOSING RANK IN ARMY

Colonel Harry D. Jackson Approved, To Direct Regiment In Camp

DRAFT BEING ORGANIZED

338 Five-Man Boards To Be Selected Soon By Two County Judges

The 37th Division, comprising most of the Ohio National Guard, today faced the loss of at least seven of its high-ranking officers, including its commander, Maj. Gen. Gilson D. Light, adjutant general of Ohio. The group failed to pass the rigid physical examinations of the regular army and as a consequence will be deprived of their federal recognition as officers.

Light, however, will remain as adjutant general of the state and probably accept an appointment from Governor Bricker as selective service administrator in Ohio. He had deferred acceptance of the position because of his desire to head the Ohio Guard in the field when it is mobilized October 15 for a year's active service.

As head of the draft, Light will supervise the registration of approximately 896,000 Ohioans between the ages of 21 and 36 for a year's service in the conscript army.

Others who failed to pass the examinations were Brig. Gen. Newell C. Bolton, Cleveland, commander of the 54th Cavalry Brigade; Col. D. F. Pancoast, commanding the 112th Engineers regiment; Col. E. P. Lawler, Columbus, commanding the 12th Quartermaster regiment; Lt. Col. Wade C. Christy, division ordnance officer; Lt. Col. John S. Shetler, supply officer; and Lt. Col. Chalmers R. Wilson, Columbus, signal officer.

Beightler Approved
Leading the list of those who passed the examination were the Guard's other three brigadier generals, one of whom, probably Gen. Robert S. Beightler, state highway director, will succeed General Light as commanding officer. Beightler commands the 74th Infantry Brigade.

The other two generals are Ludwig S. Connelly and William L. Marlin, both of Cleveland and commanders of the 73rd Infantry and the 62nd Field Artillery respectively.

Others who passed the examinations included:

Col. Whittier S. Bird, Columbus, division chief of staff and assistant adjutant general.

Col. Harry D. Jackson, Circleville, commanding the 112th medical regiment.

Lt. Col. Carlton S. Dargusch, of Columbus, division judge advocate. Meanwhile, Governor Bricker was completing plans for creation of 338 five-man draft boards and nine three-member appellate boards in the state, together with board medical advisors, all of whom will serve without pay as a patriotic duty.

Board members, who must be over the draft age of 36 years, will be appointed on the recommendation of common pleas judges and appeals court judges. October 16 has been proclaimed as draft date.

BRICKER PROCLAIMS WEEK TO HONOR KNUTE ROCKNE

Bricker lauded "the splendid lesson in fair play, good sportsmanship and perseverance" given to the youth of the state and nation by the late Notre Dame football coach.

MAJOR BEVIER NAMED TO INSPECT SOUTHERN CAMP

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28 — Major Bradford V. Bevier, of Columbus, today was ordered by Adj. Gen. Gilson D. Light to make an inspection trip to Camp Shelby, Miss., where the Ohio National Guard will go into a year's training next month.

Governor Bricker requested Light to investigate conditions at the camp after rumors were heard that no improvement of sanitary conditions had been made there since World War days. Bevier was ordered to pay particular attention to the water supply, sewage and sanitary conditions at the camp.

country from southwest England to southeast Scotland. A terrific anti-aircraft barrage prevented the early night raiders from reaching the capital, but they jettisoned high explosive and incendiary bombs on suburban districts, causing many small fires and some casualties.

Later the Nazi planes penetrated the defenses of central London, where several heavy bombs fell.

In the provinces seven towns in the northwest, two in the midlands and one in southeastern Scotland were bombed and one tiny village, a noted beauty spot, was heavily damaged.

An official communique said that 133 German raiders were destroyed in yesterday's gigantic air battles and indicated that while 34 British planes were lost the pilots of 17 of these aircraft were safe.

BERLIN, Sept. 28 — Germany's air offensive against Britain went forward relentlessly today and waves of raiding planes this morning bombed objectives in London and southern England, a Berlin announcement said.

In addition, it was claimed that 101 British planes were shot down in air battles resulting from heavy raids carried out over Britain yesterday and last evening, while 38 German planes failed to return to their bases.

This morning, it was stated, reconnaissance fliers reported thick clouds of smoke over London and heavy hits visible at the Silvertown docks as well as several warehouses on fire.

Some barracks at a troop cantonment near London were burned out, the announcement said, adding that more than 1,100 tons of bombs of all calibers have been dropped on South England and the midlands in the last 36 hours.

Large scale raids carried out during the night on military establishments, ports and industrial plants in these regions were announced.

Authorities added that strong units of German bombers concentrated on London, where effective bomb hits were reported.

They also stated that heavy raids inflicted severe damage on Hull and Newcastle as well as the British capital.

WARFARE GOES ON

Amid the talk, aerial warfare between Germany and Britain continued in full scale. German planes pounded London and other sections of the British Isles during the night and launched a new stroke at London today, causing the British capital's 134th air raid alarm of the war.

A British announcement said RAF bombers blasted German-held invasion ports and communications in Western Germany last night. Germany claimed that many tons of bombs had been dropped on southern and middle England during the last 36 hours.

HILLMAN MOVES TO END STRIFE AT BETHLEHEM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — Sidney Hillman, director of labor for the National Defense Commission, today promised to "extend every effort" to arbitrate the threatened nationwide strike of CIO workers in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation to prevent a tieup of more than $1,000,000 worth of vital defense orders.

Hillman, a powerful CIO leader who was drafted by President Roosevelt to serve on the defense commission, assured John L. Lewis' CIO that he would seek an amicable settlement with Bethlehem that would be agreeable to both sides.

However, it appeared that the CIO was headed for a showdown with Bethlehem. Opening skirmishes found labor leaders demanding that President Roosevelt intervene in their behalf. They charged that Bethlehem disregarded defense commission labor policies and violated Walsh-Healy act wage requirements in its shipbuilding plants.

future of relations between Washington and Tokyo.

Japanese circles predicted possible extension of American embargo moves to include oil and said this might force Nippon into the Dutch East Indies, a move which the United States government already has indicated it would oppose.

At Shanghai there were unconfirmed reports that Russia exacted heavy concessions from Japan as Moscow's price for acquiescence to the treaty.

In a broadcast in Tokyo, Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka declared Japan does not intend to declare the European war at present or challenge any power "without provocation." But he warned that occasions might arise later calling for "momentous decisions" and complained that Japanese intentions are "not yet fully understood"—an obvious reference to the United States.

Certain London circles saw the possibility of a rapprochement between Japan and Russia and termed it "wishful thinking" to imagine that the Berlin pact might involve the Soviets in war with the Reich or Japan.

U. S. FREIGHTER SENDS PLEA FOR HELP IN OCEAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 — The American freighter Alice Tebb, with its seams split open in the Atlantic Ocean, today flashed an S. O. S., which was picked up by Mackay radio at 5:35 a. m. EST. The terse message from the stricken ship said:

Commission To Put Men In U. S. Jobs

rather than being sent into the army, it was disclosed.

Under the plan, men of draft age will be asked about present employment and past jobs when they are classified. Meanwhile, army and navy procurement authorities will keep the National Draft Board advised of shortages of skilled labor as they occur. The word would be relayed to the local boards. Then if local boards had such skilled workers on their lists it would be possible to guide them to jobs rather than rush them off into the army.

Thus, a former toolmaker who drifted to Iowa and is now unemployed might be guided to work in a New York state machine gun factory.

A policy soon to be published by the National Draft Board will state:

"The greatest national need is material procurement. Where the two requirements conflict, conscription and production, production should have priority."

Draft board officials pointed out that there would be approximately 16,500,000 men registering on October 16. About 4,000,000 of them were expected to be in Class One, or immediately available for training. Since, however only 900,000 men can be called up a year, draft board experts said that there would be no shortage of man power available for training.

"The pact is merely a statement of a comprehensive situation. It is a political announcement — not a definition of any territorial demands or ambitions."

"The pact simply strikes at certain cliques seeking extension of the war by frustrating them beforehand in their machinations, and finally it focusses all efforts on the defeat of England. Individual issues and problems must be regulated in their own way."

knew that any chief executive with enormous sums of money in his hands could control an election.

"I could go on without end and describe to you how this administration time and time again has sought to seize power. That is the identical road by which every ancient and modern democracy has died."

"Without at all raising the question of motives—without even discussing the question—which I shall assume are of the noblest, the course of action by which the forms are preserved and the substance destroyed of the democratic process is exactly the route by which Octavian ended the Roman Republic."

"It is identically the route by which the modern democracies of Europe ended. In Germany there is still a Reichstag and in Italy still a Parliament presumably elected by the people. They retain all the forms but the substance is gone."

"Someone will say that is a far greater degree than we have in this country and I shall be the first to admit it. But I learned in school that trends in history pursue until the trend is changed."

"You cannot have your cake and eat it."
